

LITTLE BIT

on most anything

More often than not we're guilty of trying to wrap events up into one big package. We're about to do it again this week.

There are two stories on the front page of the News-Sentinel this week that have very little in common at first glance.

One is the calling of a public hearing on a recreation element for the city's general plan. It calls for a community park in the Noche Buena - LaSalle area.

The other story is about how some women, and teachers and students got together to improve the reading of some Ord Terrace students in Seaside.

A third story doesn't appear in this issue. It appears in the depths of a three-inch thick agenda packet that is usual fare for the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District trustees when they meet every other week.

In that agenda packet is a proposal for a cooperative program between the district and the Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies to train teacher-aides to work with disadvantaged children.

As usual the proposal to the state department of education -- written by Mrs. Charlie Knight, the district's compensatory education coordinator and expert fund raiser -- is well documented.

Then we stumbled on the charts and one stopped us short. The chart showed the results of the Stanford Reading Test for sixth graders in 20 district elementary schools. We glanced down the first page of 12, all matching or exceeding the state average -- but no Seaside schools. Then on the second page, eight more schools, all below the state average -- six of them from Seaside.

Well, we thought back to the story about the reading program at Ord Terrace, and it made us feel a little better. Some help, at least.

But then we got to thinking again about the fact that four of those six schools in Seaside are defacto segregated, and dangerous assumptions began knocking around in our head. We even slipped in a little curse, remembering that the state board of education has dropped its guidelines for defacto segregation.

And we said a little prayer to ourselves that the school district wouldn't buy the "benign neglect" from the state board on up the ladder to the White House.

But what does that have to do with a community park at Noche Buena and LaSalle? Well, the planning consultants who studied the neighborhoods of Seaside obviously feel it might have quite a bit to do with it. Hahn, Wise and Associates found out that by 1985 the Hannon Redevelopment Project will have nearly 40 per cent of its total population of 6200 persons under the age of 13. That means the area between Noche Buena on the west, LaSalle on the north, Yosemite on the east and Broadway on the south will have more than 2350 youngsters living in it. If that were a so-called normal neighborhood there would be less than 1700 children under 13 living in it.

It becomes very clear why the Hahn-Wise study calls for a community park in the area. That many children had better have someplace to play.

But if we pull that ribbon around this big package and try to tie it all up we have to ask why there will be that many children in the area in 1985?

It's no secret that the Hannon Project is the major reason for the defacto segregation of most of Seaside's schools. The blacks live there because they weren't welcome anywhere else when the area was developed, or they couldn't afford the Kimball area or the Del Monte forest or Carmel or Pebble Beach.

Part of that public hearing on the recreation element next week will involve the building of several townhouses where tot lots are scheduled in the Hannon Project. Those townhouses can't help but increase the density of the project. We're mindful of the problems of 50-foot lots and cul de sacs and selling land and all the other ramifications. And we're mindful that the poor people of Seaside need housing.

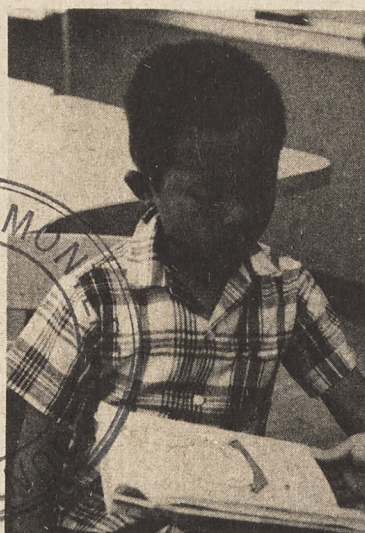

But will building those townhouses ever really teach Johnny to read?

Back-to-back hearings set next week on large city park

The city has scheduled back-to-back public hearings next week on a plan to locate a 10-acre park east of Noche Buena and south of LaSalle. The special hearings are being called so that if the park is approved, the Redevelopment Agency will have time to amend the Hannon Redevelopment Project plan to provide for the park.

The hearings are a result of a recreation element prepared by Hahn, Wise and Associates as an amendment to the general plan of the city.

The first hearing will be held by the planning commission at 7 p.m. next Thursday, May 28, in city hall. The second hearing, by the city council, will be a part of the council's regular meeting, which had already been delayed one week earlier this month.

If the council accepts the plan, the UR agency will have to hold a special public hearing early in June on its inclusion in the Hannon program. The agency must meet a June 30 deadline.

The Hahn, Wise study departs from current plans for parks in the city. As a part of redevelopment projects, several tot or play lots have been or are being built, as well as several larger neighborhood parks, such as Manzanita - Stuart, Havana - Soliz, Lincoln - Cunningham and Portola - Leslie Parks in the Del Monte Heights Project. However, there were no plans for a recreation building, baseball and/or sports field other than a tentative expansion of the area around the current Youth Center and ball field at Wheeler and Hilby. That site had been ticketed for one large recreation center when the city council asked that an architect be hired a year ago. But later, officials opted for an updating of the general plan for recreation.

The Hahn, Wise study was somewhat critical of the several tot lots in the Hannon Project, and favored the large community park because of the high concentration of elementary age and under children in the area. The percentage by 1985 will be nearly 40 per cent, the report says.

To accommodate the change, officials propose that Charles Davidson of San Jose, build several town-house complexes where some of the tot-lots would have been built. Davidson, in conjunction with the Seaside Low Cost Housing Committee, was to have built inexpensive housing in a five-acre site at LaSalle and Noche Buena. Instead that 100-unit development would be spread throughout the Hannon area, with a loss of some 17 units from the original plan. Walter Brown of SLCHC has indicated he planned to continue to work with Davidson, and the new plan will still call for federal programs for poor - family home ownership.

The Hahn, Wise plan would call for a community building totaling 13,700 square feet at the LaSalle-Noche Buena park site, a full fledged baseball diamond and bleachers court games space and considerable turf area, in addition to two parking lots.

By stages the Hahn, Wise study would also improve and expand the Hilby-Wheeler site to include another community building and more open space areas in addition to the ball field already there.

Their study also calls for several other small tot lots and neighborhood parks throughout the city.

Planners okay 5 business permits, halt housing experiment

Seaside Planning Commissioners last week gave the go-ahead to a new pizza restaurant, approved facelifting for two service stations, okayed two use permits for businesses to continue in operation and put a halt to a low-cost housing experiment.

At their regular monthly meeting, the commission:

--Approved a use permit for the Round Table Pizza Restaurant for Olympia Plaza Shopping Center at 1760 Fremont. It will occupy the space that formerly housed Julie's, which moved to Ord Terrace Shopping Center when Berg's Smart Fashions closed. The Round Table is due to open about Aug. 1. The use permit was for the sale of beer in conjunction with the restaurant whose menu will include hot dogs, hamburgers and sandwiches in addition to pizza. The restaurant will seat about 165 persons.

--Issued permits to Texaco to modernize two of the company's stations in Seaside -- at the corner of Palm and Fremont and at Kimball and Fremont.

--Okayed a use permit for Luella Britton to continue in business as Artichoke Gardens at 1272 Broadway, but bled for further study her request for a zone change. Mrs. Britton sought a change from neighborhood commercial to central commercial. A motion by Pete Cruz to deny the zone change was defeated, 3-2, Mrs. Billie Barton voting with Cruz and Chairman Don Howland, Glenn Olea and Sam Brown opposing it. (Bud Marshall was absent). The commission then unanimously approved putting the request on the table. Planning Director Bill Burris said he feared the change of zoning would be tantamount to granting a monopoly by spot zoning. Mrs. Britton would be able to sell beer and wine on site under the C-1 zoning, whereas the C-N does not permit on-sale beer establishments.

--Approved a use permit for International Cycle Center and Mead's Camper and Trailer Sales move from Fremont and Elm to the site of the former Pine Inn on south Fremont.

--Approved a permit for the Peace and Freedom Party to open an office at 1536 Del Monte. Commissioners approved the request until after the elections in November.

--Ratified Burris' freeze on allowing any more low-cost modular houses. Burris reported that the architect and builder Marcel Sedletzky had not landscaped the two models he built on Highland and Mendocino as agreed when the planning commission and board of architectural review gave their approval. Sedletzky had an option with the Redevelopment Agency for another three 50-foot lots on which he planned to build the same type of houses. Those options have been voided by the UR agency.

Ballot issues

Arguments for and against the propositions which will appear on the June ballot are among the items to be presented at the May meeting of the League of Women Voters of the Monterey Peninsula.

The meeting will be held May 21, at 1 p.m. at the Pacific Grove Community Center.

League members and others interested are invited to attend.

WHO CARES

by M.J. Vercoe

Is there any particular point in continuing our present form of government? That question was asked by a member of the audience after a law professor from Stanford had given a talk on the general subject of the Constitution and presidential actions.

According to the speaker, Mr. Johnson and Mr. Nixon were very definitely latecomers to the ranks of Constitution circumventers.

Among others, Abraham Lincoln was no slouch when it came to doing Congress' work for them. Some of his actions leading up to and including part of the Civil War were about as Constitutional as pulling bricks out of the Washington Monument, and apparently it created quite a fuss at the time, but he got away with it.

Considering the vast destruction and great loss of life, and the rather insignificant overall results to the welfare of the slaves it was supposed to do so much for, the Civil War was about as productive as the ill-fated excursion into Asia by way of a stalemate in Korea.

And good old Teddy Roosevelt - who sent the Great White Fleet half way around the world without an OK from anybody except himself - and then told Congress if they wanted their fleet back they had better appropriate enough money to bring it home - he would have gotten a big laugh out of Lyndon Johnson's Tonkin Gulf trick.

But, seriously, this Constitution that we interpret and enforce so meticulously and ridiculously where it applies to insignificant matters that really won't mean a damn to anybody twenty years from now, and yet is ignored almost completely on matters that mean life or death to hundreds of thousands of people, and may mean death to our whole nation and civilization - is this document no longer meaningful?

And if it doesn't mean anything, why are we making such a pretense that it does? Is this another of America's numerous and overworked escape mechanisms, that give us something to bolster our egos while we blithely ignore grim realities?

Then we assure ourselves that it isn't that way, because it can't happen without the approval of Congress, since they have to agree to some extent in the House and Senate that such acts are in America's best interests, and they have to appropriate the money.

And if either the President or Congress doesn't something that is not Constitutional, then our Supreme Court is required by law to exercise its veto power on the whole shaboodle.

And yet none of these things takes place. Congress hides behind the door and secretly enjoys the political fruits of such things as illegal wars being declared legally simply by not calling them wars. And if anyone can figure out the relationship between the duties of the Supreme Court and what that court actually does, then that observer must truly reside in Heaven.

Which brings us to the question posed by the fellow in the audience. Since the Constitution is apparently being ignored, and since we apparently do not have a representative form of government here in America, why continue it, since it is definitely not working very effectively, all platitudes aside.

Maybe we would have better luck selecting our leaders and representatives by lottery, pulling names out of a hat. Or maybe, instead of gently slapping the wrists of elected officials who don't act responsibly in America's interests, they could be culled out once a year and given a one way trip to Mars.

A monarchy probably wouldn't work. We don't have that many candidates who are both honest and intelligent, and we don't have enough time to experiment. We already have what I consider an excellent system. But the problem is to find unselfish, dedicated employees to make it workable in today's world.

Change colleges names

A legislative measure that changes the use of the term "Junior College" in California Codes to that of "Community Colleges" has been signed into law.

Introduced by State Senator Donald L. Grunsky (R-Watsonville) and George E. Danielson (D-Los Angeles), the bill changes all references in California law to "Community College" and allows the states 92-two-year public colleges in 68 districts to change their official names from junior to community.

"This is a fine piece of legislation," Gov. Ronald Reagan said, "it more clearly describes the function of our two-year colleges and the outstanding way in which they are serving their respective communities."

The Community Colleges represent one of California's finest assets.

The statewide Community College Board of Governors was created by legislation in 1968 and operates through its administrative arm, the Office of the Chancellor, in Sacramento.

Mothers meeting

Relaxation and its relation to breastfeeding will be the subject of the June 3 meeting of the Nursing Mother's Council. Guest speaker will be Margot Edwards a teacher for the Childbirth Education League.

The Nursing Mother's Council consists of mothers who are or who have breastfed their children. The purpose of the council is to provide information and a pool of experience and common interest.

Special workshop

A "human relationships" workshop is scheduled to start in June at Monterey Peninsula College, to run one night a week for six consecutive weeks.

Limited to ten persons, the workshop will begin June 3, in MPC's business conference room, and continue Wednesday evenings thereafter, 7 to 10 p.m., through July 8. Edward Farrington, chairman of the college's psychology department, will act as leader.

Mrs. NAACP

THE SECOND annual Mrs. NAACP Coronation ball was held at the Holiday Inn in Monterey recently. Mrs. NAACP for 1970, Mrs. Richard A. Augustine, was crowned by Seaside City Councilman Stephen E. Ross. Mrs. James Delaney, right, was second runner up. The affair was co-hosted by Mrs. Sherman W. Smith and Mrs. John Bean Jr. The affair was well attended by over 200 persons with all profits from the affair going to the Monterey Peninsula Branch NAACP freedom fund.

Kindergarten Registration

Early registration for children who will attend kindergarten in Marina, Seaside, or Monterey public schools next fall will be held through Thursday. Hours for registration are 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m.

Registration of all students new to the district, kindergarten through senior high school grade 12, and late kindergarten registration at elementary schools at Fort Ord, will be held in August.

Kindergarten children usually are registered at the nearest elementary school, but may be referred to another school if the residence is not within the attendance area.

California law requires proof of age for children who enter kindergarten or first grade. To be eligible for kindergarten, a pupil must be at least four years, nine months old as of September 1 (born on or before December 2, 1965). A birth certificate, baptismal record, insurance policy, passport, parental affidavit, or some other official document is needed to verify the birth date.

Christian Science

An explanation of "Soul" is given in the Lesson-Sermon on "Soul and Body" to be read in all Christian Science churches May 24.

The public is invited to attend services beginning at 11 a.m. at Christian Science Churches on the Monterey Peninsula.

A program on pollution will be broadcast in "The Bible Speaks to You" series, Sunday May 24 at 7:45 a.m. over station KRML. This Christian Science program is called "What Environment Do You Live In?"

Fly In this weekend

Between three and four hundred of the finest antique aircraft to be seen in the Bay Area will be on exhibition during the Sixth Annual West Coast National Antique Fly-In to be held at the Watsonville Municipal Airport this weekend.

Sponsored by the Watsonville Chamber of Commerce and the Northern California Chapter, Antique Airplane Association, the event drew between sixty and seventy thousand spectators last year. The Fly-In is the only one of its kind on the West Coast, which is nationally sanctioned by the Antique Airplane Association.

Participants are coming from as far away as British Columbia and Boise, Idaho. Two participants are coming from overseas -- one from Zambia, Central Africa, and one from Wiesbaden, Germany. A large contingent is expected from Washington State, and will join up with a group from Redding and Red Bluff and fly down in group formation if weather permits. A group of pre-World War II Tiger Moths, a British training plane, will fly up as a group from the Los Angeles area. A continuing highlight and tradition of the event is the annual lumberjack breakfast, sponsored by the Corralitos Padres to be held at the Corralitos Youth Center on Sunday.

Price for adults is $1.50 and for children under twelve 75¢. Included in the visiting antique aircraft this year will be a B-25 bomber of World War II vintage, one, and perhaps as many as three, Ford Tri-Motors, affectionally known as the "Tin Goose," trainer from the Naval Air Station, Norfolk, Virginia, to the Fly-In.

Activities beginning with registration of the antique planes on Friday afternoon will be highlighted by aerobatic performances at 2 p.m. on Saturday, and 1 p.m. on Sunday. In addition, judging and flying contests will take place on Saturday morning at 10 a.m. Contests will include short-field take-offs and landings, flour bombing, spot landings and slow flight.

Completes training

Six enlisted men assigned to the Army Combat Developments Command Experimentation Command at Fort Ord have graduated from a Police Officers' Training Course held on the post.

The 17-week course was designed to instruct students in the basics of law enforcement to include investigation, crime detection and making of arrests. It was patterned after training given at the California Police Academy.

The course was offered by Fort Ord's Education Center in coordination with Monterey Peninsula College and the Police Officers Training Division of the California Community Colleges.

The graduates were Spec-4 Clement M. Landry, Staff Sgt. Carl L. Reid, Spec-5 Edward W. Harriger, Sfc Raymond Lopez Jr., Staff Sgt. Edward Brown and Spec-4 Thomas Gutshall.

All earned 12 credits toward an Associate of Arts degree in Police Science.

Scout Dinner

The Silver Beaver Award, scouting's highest award for volunteer leaders, will be presented to five men at the annual recognition dinner of the Monterey Bay Area Council of the Boy Scouts June 3.

The names of the Beaver recipients will be announced at the dinner.

Over 300 Scouters and wives are expected to attend the dinner that is aimed to recognizing the volunteers serving boys in the council which includes Monterey, Santa Cruz and San Benito Counties.

LAW IN ACTION

INSTALLMENT BUYING

The state law which covers credit sales has been strengthened.

Once the law did not cover sales of less than $50, but now it covers all retail installment sales.

Anyone who breaks this law may face criminal as well as civil penalties, sometimes treble damages. If a contract violates the law, a court, as a rule, invalidates it and returns the buyer's money and costs.

Mainly the act calls for:

1. A written contract -- in one piece. This contract must set out such details as cash and time sale price, down payment, trade-in, insurance, service charges, time balance, etc. No contract can leave blanks to be filled in after the buyer signs it.

2. The law limits charges-- for service, for refinancing, or consolidation or add-on charges. The law limits insurance premiums to what the insurer actually charges.

3. If the buyer wants to pay before the full debt falls due, he can get a detailed statement of what he owes and can pay it. If he does pay then he can get a credit refund. The seller must give the service charge rates and the balance on which he figures the service charges.

4. In the past, by turning installment contracts over to a finance company, some sellers could cut off the buyer's legal grounds for not paying his bill. Now the buyer has the same defenses, against paying the finance company, as he had against paying the seller.

5. The law curbs the seller's rights of repossession and other collection practices. The buyer can redeem the repossessed goods. The law limits or bars charges for storage of such goods and charges for default notices.

Note: California lawyers offer this column so you may know about our laws.

Seaside youth wins grant

Robert Montgomery, a Seaside High School senior, has been selected winner of the $500 scholarship awarded by the Ft. Ord Officers Wives Club to a military dependent. He is the son of Sgt. and Mrs. John R. Montgomery of Marina.

Robert was chosen not only for his academic achievements, but also for his extracurricular activities and future educational plans. He has been accepted at Stanislaus State College where he plans to major in chemistry. While at Fitch Junior High School, Robert was president of the student body and a charter member of the Junior Honor Society. He is a member of the California Scholarship Federation, the Ft. Ord Junior Rifle Club and an Eagle Scout. At Seaside High, he won a letter in swimming, was a student council representative, vice-president of the Science Club and an alternate delegate to Boys' State.

Auxiliaries Aid Schools

To better meet the needs of children enrolled at Juan Cabrillo School, certain auxiliary personnel were assigned there this year, their salaries funded from out-of-district sources.

A mathematics aide six hours daily helps children referred by teachers who ask that they receive special drill or other assistance related to classroom work. A library aide makes it possible for children to browse through books when they have free time, to check out and return books, and to learn library skills such as using the card catalogue and reference materials.

Two reading specialists are assigned to Cabrillo School this year, teachers highly skilled in remedial reading techniques who work with children referred by regular classroom teachers. Salaries of the mathematics and library aides and one of the reading specialists is paid by federal grant funds. The other reading specialist is paid from state funds.

MPC open house

An open house will be held by the Monterey Peninsula College electronics department Thursday from 2 to 10 p.m. in the electronics and engineering buildings on the west side of the campus, with the public cordially invited to attend.

The event is an outgrowth of a technology road show recently conducted by MPC faculty members and 40 of their electronics, engineering technology and drafting students for the local high schools.

Name grant winners

A total of $1,600 in scholarships and $300 in grants-in-aid will be awarded winners in the recent instrumental music auditions held at Monterey Peninsula College.

Four $400 scholarships, funded by the Monterey Jazz Festival, will go to Warren Wilson of Monterey High School, Eugene Short, Pacific Grove High School, Darrell Anderson, an MPC student from Seaside, and Robert Ramos, an MPC student from Carmel. When the students enroll as music majors or minors at the college in the fall, the money will be paid to them in ten monthly payments beginning in September.

BOB WOOD REPORTS

A Weekly Column By The 34th District Assemblyman

In These trying times a review of the daily happenings throughout the nation, particularly on our college campuses, leaves many parents with the feeling of divided frustration. For those who share this feeling I would like to report to you the actual happening of the student gathering on the Capitol steps here in Sacramento this last Friday. (It gives one hope)

We in the Legislature, along with the maintenance and security division of the Capitol, were notified that somewhere between 5,000 and 10,000 students would descend on the Capitol May 8, at 10 a.m. Not knowing whether certain factions within this group might be destructive in their intent, the Capitol grounds staff and the Assembly Rules Committee was in a quandary as to the amount of law protection that would be needed. The leaders in the Senate had decided to cancel their regular session and their members were allowed to return to their districts. The Governor had made a prior commitment several months before and he was not able to be present that day. But those of us in the Assembly, both Republicans and Democrats, voted to stay in the Capitol and meet the students at their request and take time to listen and discuss the issues of the day in small groups.

Myself, along with many other Legislators, spoke briefly before the students and I asked those students whose home was in Monterey County to meet at a certain area on the Capitol grounds where we could talk.

From the small group of students that I talked with, of which some were from Monterey County and some from other areas, I asked how come the huge gathering was so peaceful that morning. How come there was no violence and destruction which most of us had read about in other areas where huge crowds of students had gathered together. Their answer gave myself, as a parent, hope that the view of the silent-majority, those we hear so little about in the newscasts are beginning to be heard.

The young men and women that made up the small group that I talked with told me that various student meetings had been held prior to the huge gathering, not only at UC Davis, but at Sacramento State, Sacramento City College, American River College and other colleges within this area. They reported that the radical SDS type of leadership was booted off the stage at these meetings and the everyday student groups themselves set up the rules and the rules, that they set up, were with the sole purpose that the gathering would be peaceful. Four hundred monitors were versed in their jobs as to how they were to control the huge crowd. Three hundred more were assigned to the Crisis core, each with a walkie-talkie. This group was formed with the sole purpose to stop any radical faction movement which might spring up within such a huge crowd with the intent of destruction. What were the results? Just this: there was no need for any additional police on the Capitol grounds or within the building, as the students had agreed to stay out of the Capitol building itself. All doors to the Capitol were kept open. Not one flower or plant was destroyed on the grounds and the student monitors saw to it that all trash was completely cleaned up before they left.

Although I did not personally agree with all of the statements made by some of the principal speakers at the gathering, I was impressed by the knowledge and sincerity and behavior of the majority of the students present. After I had left the students and returned to my office I felt again the affects of the morning prayer our Chaplin, Father McAllister, had given before the Assembly that morning. In his morning prayer he had said:

"Father, give to each of us an awareness of our individual responsibility in the affairs of government; save us from silent majorities who by their silence refuse to bar the responsibility of government; save us from vocal minorities whose only means of protest is violence. Give us men who can disagree with each other without losing respect for each other; give us people who can listen to each other."

Enuf for now...

Bob Wood

Headlights constant problem

Drivers of about 38 per cent of the passenger vehicles inspected by the California Highway Patrol in passenger vehicle inspection lanes annually receive warnings because their headlights are out of adjustment.

The blue shield emblems which mark the 3500 Official Lamp Adjusting Stations in California are unnoticed by many drivers until they receive the headlight warning. The stations' location becomes important because the warnings should be cleared at one of them.

The stations, licensed by the California Highway Patrol, play a key role in the vehicle safety program of the state. A headlamp misaimed one degree to the right or left will be displaced five feet at a point 300 feet in front of the vehicle. If the misaim is in an upward direction, the lower beam will glare into the eyes of oncoming drivers and the upper beam will be directed far above the roadway. Downward misaim reduces visibility distances to less than normal stopping distances at freeway speeds.

Concern about headlights is not new in California. As early as 1929 the California Motor Vehicle Act, predecessor of the present Vehicle Code, specified that headlamps must be tested and of an approved type before being offered for sale for use upon vehicles on California highways. Compared with modern standards, the adjustment of the 1919 headlamps was relatively simple. An attempt was made to secure adequate driving light to assure visibility and at the same time to minimize the glare in the eyes of approaching drivers at the night speed limit of 30 miles per hour.

When the night limit was raised to 35 miles per hour in 1923, changes were made in lighting requirements.

In 1929, when the Legislature created the California Highway Patrol as part of the Division of Motor Vehicles, it also enacted a law empowering the Chief of the Division of Motor Vehicles to designate and supervise official stations for adjusting headlamps and auxiliary driving lamps.

The introduction of sealed beam headlamps in 1939 improved sealed beam lamps in 1955, lamps with aiming pads molded on the lens in 1957 and the first four-lamp lighting system in 1957 all required new standards and new methods of adjusting.

Today, Official Lamp Adjusting Stations have three methods of headlamp aiming: the aiming screen, which involves a visual appraisal of a beam pattern and aim on a screen 25 feet in front of the vehicle; the optical aimer, which foreshortens the 25-foot distance by means of a lens and projects the beam pattern on a screen inside the aimer; and a mechanical aimer, which aligns the aiming pads of sealed units through a system of optical references and spirit levels.

The adjusting process does not take long, and it is usually possible to wait in the car while it is being done. However, for best service it's probably wise to phone ahead for an appointment, since most lamp adjusting stations do a variety of other repair work which they are reluctant to interrupt on a drop-in basis.

Drug lecture

Dr. Hardin B. Jones of the University of California Berkeley, a leading lecturer on drugs, will deliver two lectures on the subject in Monterey May 26. He will first speak on "The Drug Craze" at 1 p.m. in MPC's Lecture-Forum 103. The lecture is open to students and all members of the public without charge, and no tickets will be required for admission.

Dr. Jones' second lecture, entitled "Drugs - Use and Abuse," will be the feature of a non-profit, non-political dinner to be sponsored by the Monterey Bay Republican Women's Club at 7:30 p.m. in the Monterey Elks Club ballroom, 150 Mar Vista Drive, Monterey.

Reservations for the dinner may be made by mailing checks for $5 per person to the Republican Women's Club, P.O. Box 45, Monterey, with tickets to be claimed at the door.

A SANDWICH FIND

In 1870 the dessert Baked Alaska was created by New York's famed Delmonico Restaurant in honor of the American purchase of the territory of Alaska.

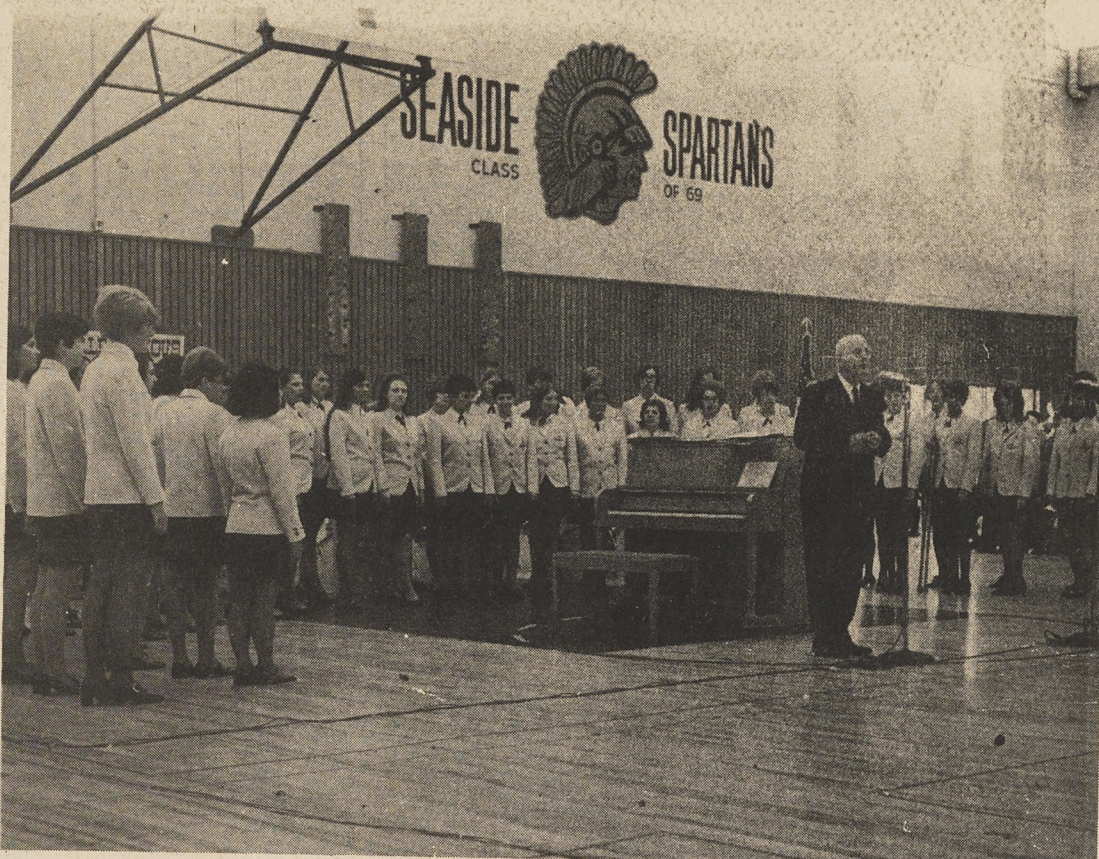

The main ingredient of this 1970 sandwich Alaska is king crab from our 49th state. It's seasoned and mixed with cooked egg yolks, then spread over crisp HOLLAND Rusk. Beaten egg whites and cheese are piled over the crab and the sandwiches are baked to golden perfection.

A bonanza—only 39 calories per rusk!

CRAB MEAT ALASKA

2 eggs, separated
1/3 cup dairy sour cream
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/16 teaspoon cayenne
1 teaspoon powdered mustard
1 1/2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 1/2 teaspoons finely chopped onion
1/4 cup thinly sliced celery
1 (7 1/2 ounce) can Alaska King crab meat, flaked
4 HOLLAND Rusk
1/3 cup grated Parmesan cheese

Separate egg yolks from whites being careful not to break yolks. Cook yolks in simmering water to cover, 10 minutes or until cooked through. Crumble. Combine next eight ingredients. Add yolks and blend well. Place about 1/3 cup mixture on each rusk, mounding slightly. Arrange in a shallow baking pan. Beat egg whites until they form stiff, moist peaks; fold in cheese. Pile on crab meat filling. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (350°F.) until the meringue is delicately browned, 12 to 15 minutes. Serve immediately. Makes 4 crab meat Alaskas.

Concert

THE SEASIDE HIGH School student body listens to a sterling performance by the Cal. Poly Dance Band and Chorus recently. The administration believes that this was the most successful assembly program thus far this year.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Q. I am writing in regards to Medicare. I have a red, white and blue card, but I am wondering if I have to have a Part B card too.

A. If your red, white and blue card reads that you are entitled to benefits for: Hospital insurance - medical insurance - then this means you are covered for both Part A (hospital) and Part B (medical).

There are no separate cards for Part A and Part B. If you are having $4 a month deducted from a Social Security check, or paying $12 quarterly to the Social Security Administration, you have Part B medical insurance. There is no premium for Part A coverage.

Q. I am now receiving Social Security. When I earn around the $1,680, we are allowed, could I notify them to stop my checks, if I decide to work the rest of the year? Would my checks start again in January 1971, and would I owe anything on my earnings for 1970?

A. If you are going to exceed the $1,680, you should notify your district Social Security office now and not wait until you reach the $1,680. If you earn more than that, the amount of Social Security you would lose would depend upon the total earnings and months in which you worked. Your checks could start again in January 1971, only if you owed nothing for 1970. It could be that your earnings, would be so great, you would not be entitled to checks during the months before you exceeded $1,680, therefore an overpayment would exist.

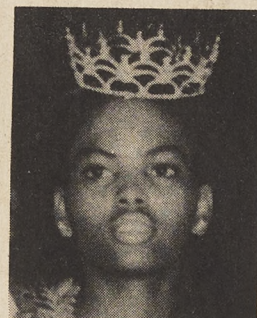

Childbirth films

The Childbirth Education League will present two prenatal films Thursday at the Monterey Public Library.

The first film titled "The Story of a Birth," shows a couple preparing themselves for the birth of their child. The second film is "Natural Childbirth." It shows an actual delivery as well as preparation for childbirth. The films begin at 8 p.m.

Visits

RAYMOND T. Burden, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond T. Burden, 570 Hamilton Street, visits Seaside High School for one day. He is now a senior at San Jose State College and is No. 1 in his R.O.T.C. CLASS, earning the highest rank attainable, Regimental Colonel.

Never too young to teach

When James Manning, principal at Ord Terrace School, Seaside, asked the School Volunteer Aides for more help for children falling behind in reading and mathematics last December, a question arose as to where enough tutors could be found. The answer came from King Junior High School Honor Society. Roger Kelly, vice-principal at King, mentioned the project to these seventh and eighth grade students and the response was enthusiastic. The program was launched with 22 volunteer student tutors from King.

The King tutors were Ed Adams, Barbara Anderson, Lee Arnold, JoAnn Carew, Gary Clark, Anna Cyran, Melvin Fortes, Cecilia Freitas, Mary Gregory, Cheryl Hanano, Wayne Hanano, Carl Henry, Andy Kendall, Tim Lee, David McFarland, Tod Ottman, Jesse Perez, Gene Roger, Chris Solberg, Cathy Thompson, James Rawlings and Martie Warner.

Later SVA, a Monterey Peninsula-wide adult group which already had placed 15 adult aides at Ord Terrace School recruited 12 more adults, 6 students from Seaside High School, and finally 8 students from Monterey Peninsula College were added in April when MPC opened a volunteer bureau on-campus.

Mrs. De Forest Sweeney of Carmel, SVA chairman, said that the program was opened to all Ord Terrace pupils, not just slow learners. The principal sent each child home with a letter about the tutorial program and an application form. More than 40 were registered the first week. Eventually the total reached 57. Of these 19 are in grade 1, 13 in grade 3, 7 each in grades 2 and 4, 6 in grade 5 and 5 in grade 6.

Mrs. Sweeney said at the orientation meeting in January emphasis was first to be friends with the children and then to become tutors or helpers. Tutors have been encouraged to make learning fun. SVA has supplied word and arithmetic games, magazines and books. There are two weekly tutorial sessions Monday-Wednesdays directed by Mrs. Sweeney and Tuesday-Thursday by Mrs. Henry Jerauld of Hacienda Carmel in Carmel Valley. Most tutors meet with the assigned student in one or the other session; one met with her charge all four days for four months. The afternoon sessions are from 2:15 to 2:50 p.m. or from 3:10 to 3:50 p.m. Some tutors have two pupils, one each hour. Attendance has been excellent according to Mrs. Sweeney. Workshops for tutors and daily supervision by adults has assured quality and pertinent help for the children.

The program ended this week. Several events are planned to honor the participating students and the volunteers.

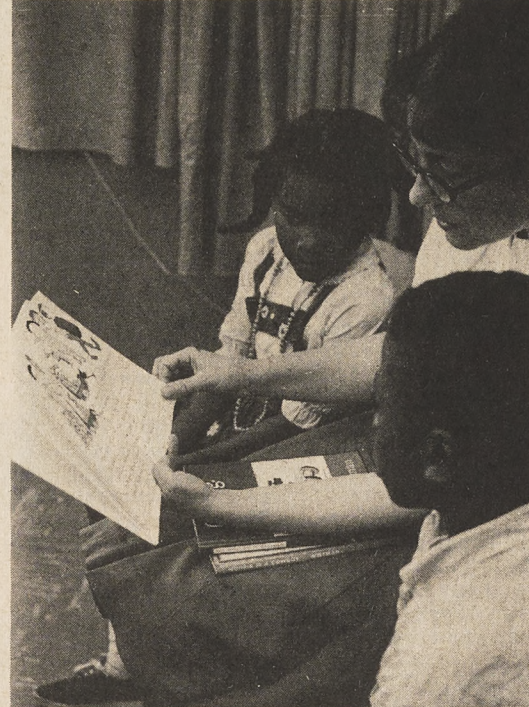

Wednesday at 11:40 a.m. certificated will be awarded to the 22 members of King Junior High School Honor Society in Room C-1, King Junior High School, 1713 Broadway, Seaside.

And at 1:40 and again at 2 p.m. certificated will be awarded the 57 participating pupils at Ord Terrace School assemblies. The school is located at 1755 La Salle Avenue. The final tutoring session will be at 2:30 p.m. at the school. At 3:15 p.m. the entire group will be guests at the Police Officers Association circus at Monterey County Fairgrounds.

Wednesday, May 27, the Ord Terrace School staff and Parent-Teacher Association will honor the 27 adult volunteers who have assisted at the school this year, including the 12 adult tutors and 15 teacher aides.

Mrs. Sweeney said that next year MPC will offer a credit course for tutors. Currently 22 MPC students are volunteers in the schools of Seaside area.

The adult tutors backing up Mrs. Sweeney and Mrs. Jerauld were Mrs. John Kingsley, Mrs. Betty Chappell, Mrs. Morgan Stock, Miss Marianne Holstrom, Mrs. William Norton, Mrs. Jean Mehlert, Mrs. Justin Kramer, Mrs. Ann Cummings and Mrs. Cooper.

Wealth From Sea? Only a Trickle

SANTA BARBARA — A "mineral cornucopia" beneath the sea is a hypothesis, not a reality, according to a widely-respected scientist.

"What is actually won from the sea will be the result of persistent, imaginative research, inspired invention, bold and skillful experiment, and intelligent application and management," says Dr. Preston Cloud, chairman of the Committee on Resources and Man of the National Academy of Sciences.

Writing on "Mineral Resources from the Sea" in the Committee's report of its two-year study of the world's resources, Dr. Cloud states that "if present conceptions of earth structure and of sea-floor composition and history are approximately correct, minerals from the seabed are not likely to compare in volume or in value with those yet to be taken from the emerged lands."

He notes that the cost of undersea exploration is high even in relatively shallow water, exceeding by 10 to 100 times that of land-based operations. Although less than five percent of the world's known production of geological wealth listed in Dr. Cloud's article came from the shelves and seawater in 1964, the trend is upward. In terms of current values, oil and gas are by far the most important products.

As for seawater itself, despite its large quantities of dissolved salts, it can supply but few substances considered essential to modern industry, according to Dr. Cloud, a professor of biogeochemistry at UC-Santa Barbara.

Dr. Cloud's study, along with those of seven other scientists, is available in the book "Resources and Man," published by W. H. Freeman and Co., San Francisco, for the National Academy of Sciences.

Zinc, which is high among the metals sought by industry, is offered by Dr. Cloud as an example of the magnitude of the seawater extraction process.

"A modest operation aimed at grossing $120,000 per year at 1968 values—before costs for salaries, operation, and investment—would require the complete stripping of zinc from 9000 billion gallons (nearly nine cubic miles) of ordinary seawater annually—a volume equivalent to the combined average annual flows of the Hudson and Delaware Rivers."

He notes that the production from this operation would be only about 400 tons of zinc; a trickle compared with the 122,400 tons used industrially in the United States during the same year.

He states, however, that seawater can supply all the magnesium and bromine that we need, as well as common salt and some other substances.

The sediments of the continental shelves and the crystalline rocks beneath them can be expected to produce mineral commodities similar to those of the immediately adjacent land, he reports. And the submerged continental margin will prove to be a favorable target for further mineral exploration, not only for oil and gas, but for metal, chemical and construction (sand and gravel) resources as well.

Despite these expectations, Dr. Cloud warns against succumbing to "the misleading notion that a great variety of resources are available in large volumes, such that when we run out of terrestrial resources we can simply turn to the sea."

He concludes that, "There are other and better reasons for studying the ocean basins than for their supposed endemic mineral wealth."

Here are some additional points made by Dr. Cloud in his article on mineral resources from the sea:

—Seawater does not appear as a practicable source for important metals other than magnesium, sodium, potassium, and perhaps strontium and boron.

—Oyster shells, which are used in the Dow process for the extraction of magnesium, are being taken from shallower parts of the shelves in relatively large quantities. This trend probably will increase, as will the taking of nearshore submarine sand and gravel.

—The ocean basins beyond the continental margin are not promising places to seek mineral resources.

—Any large-scale operations to exploit offshore placer deposits should be preceded by a modest program to develop the needed methods, skill, and legislation. Otherwise the loss to other resources may be greater than the gains from those exploited.
